Executive Director

Malissa Stawicki is a passionate leader and successful entrepreneur who follows her curious nature and interests in holistic health modalities. She grew up in Arizona and moved to Europe after graduation from ASU with a bachelor's degree in Photography. She spent the next 17 years in Paris and London, where she founded and published a fashion and art publication called SPOON. This publication became an international success, attracting some of the greatest creative talents and luxury brands. It was later acquired by a lucrative art publishing group and Malissa went on to complete an MBA program at TRIUM, a global executive MBA program ranked amongst the top 5.

In 2006, she became ill and her wellness journey led her to become an advocate, educator and promoter of alternative medicine, including homeopathy. The Homeopathic Love Story, by Rima Handley continues to be an inspiration for her.

In 2014, she joined the American Medical College of Homeopathy (AMCH) Board and served for one year. In 2015, she started Natural Medicine and Detox, a holistic clinic in downtown Phoenix together with Dr. Mario Fontes.

Malissa recently became the Executive Director at CHC and is looking forward to working with the team and helping to grow the organization. As the organization strives to promote qualified homeopaths to the general public, Malissa will contribute her vast experience in content creation, marketing and publishing to enhance certificant's exposure, making homeopathy more accessible and known to all.

Malissa happily supports CHC applicants, candidates, and certificants in their efforts to meet and maintain a recognized standard of professional and ethical competence in classical homeopathy.
